Chapter XIV

Other political and security questions

Twenty-fifth anniversary of the United Nations

At its twenty-sixth session, which opened on 21 September 1971, the General Assembly had before it the final report of its Committee for the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the United Nations, which had been established on 31 October 1969.1

On 26 November 1971, without adopting a resolution, the Assembly took note of the final report of the Committee.

Among the highlights of the twenty-fifth anniversary celebrations to which the report referred were the commemorative session of the General Assembly held at United Nations Headquarters from 14 to 24 October 1970, the meeting commemorating the signing of the United Nations Charter, held in San Francisco (United States) on 26 June 1970, and the World Youth Assembly, which met at United Nations Headquarters in July 1970.

The report also referred to commemorative stamps and medals issued to mark the anniversary, awards for long service presented to staff members, and commemorative ceremonies held at various United Nations offices, by the specialized agencies and at national levels by many countries.

At its commemorative session, the report noted, the General Assembly adopted several major declarations, including the Declaration on the Occasion of the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the United Nations. 3

The Committee’s report also noted that public information activities connected with the anniversary were varied and were devised in such a way as to involve all media, as well as non-governmental organizations and other groups interested in the work of the United Nations.

Peace research

At its 1971 session, the General Assembly, at the suggestion of Belgium, discussed the question of scientific work on peace research.

At a plenary meeting on 14 December 1971, the Assembly asked the Secretary-General to prepare every other year an informative report on scientific works produced by national and international, governmental and non-governmental, public and private institutions working in the field of peace research. The Assembly invited Governments and institutions to provide information in this connexion, and it asked the United Nations Institute for Training and Research and specialized agencies active in the field of peace research to assist in the drafting of the report to the General Assembly.

In taking this decision, the Assembly observed that scientific research on the problems of war and peace had expanded, and considered it desirable to bring this work to the notice of the international community.

These Assembly decisions were set forth in resolution 2817(XXVI), adopted by 59 votes to 7, with 3 abstentions, on the basis of a proposal by Belgium, Burundi, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Lebanon, Mexico, the Netherlands, Norway, Romania and Yugoslavia. (For text of resolution, see DOCUMENTARY REFERENCES below.)
Considering it desirable to bring to the notice of the international community the work done in the field of peace research by national and international institutions and to promote on a permanent basis, in the light of the purposes and principles of the Charter, a recording of the studies devoted to this subject,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare every other year an informative report on scientific works produced by national and international, governmental and non-governmental, public and private institutions in the field of peace research;

2. Invites the Governments of Member States and the institutions referred to in paragraph 1 above to provide the Secretary-General, to the best of their ability and competence, with all the information he may require;

3. Requests the United Nations Institute for Training and Research and those specialized agencies which are active in the field of peace research to lend their assistance in the drafting of the report referred to above;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly, at the beginning of its twenty-eighth session, the first report prepared under paragraph 1 above.

Proposal by Cuba concerning Puerto Rico

In a letter dated 17 August 1971 to the Secretary-General, Cuba requested the inclusion of an item entitled “The colonial case of Puerto Rico” in the provisional agenda of the 1971 session of the General Assembly. Attached to the letter was an explanatory memorandum stating that the people of Puerto Rico had an inalienable right to independence and that the United Nations had the unavoidable duty to take all necessary steps to ensure that those people achieved the full exercise of their national rights.

On 24 September 1971, the General Assembly decided, by a roll-call vote of 57 to 26, with 38 abstentions, not to include the item on its agenda. It did so on the recommendation of its General Committee, which had taken its decision on the matter on 23 September by 10 votes to 5, with 8 abstentions.

Proclamation of United Nations Day as an international holiday

Believing that the anniversary of the United Nations should be an occasion for Governments and peoples to reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, the General Assembly, on 6 December 1971, declared that 24 October—United Nations Day—should be an international holiday. It recommended that the day should be observed as a public holiday by all States Members of the United Nations.

The Assembly took this action with the adoption of resolution 2782(XXVI), by 63 votes to 6, with 32 abstentions, on the basis of a text sponsored by Barbados, Burundi, Cyprus, Greece, Guyana, the Khmer Republic, Liberia, Mauritius, the Philippines, Swaziland, Yugoslavia and Zambia. (For text of resolution, see DOCUMENTARY REFERENCES below.)

The question was discussed at a plenary meeting at the suggestion of Zambia.

Communication concerning the foreign relations of Malta

By a letter dated 30 June 1971 to the President of the Security Council, the Acting Permanent Representative of Malta transmitted the text of a statement by his Government concerning its relations with the British Government, the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The statement denied accusations appearing in the foreign press of the unilateral abrogation of the 1964 Defense Agreement. According to the statement, that Agreement was no longer in being.

Although the Maltese Government could have ordered the withdrawal of all British forces from Malta, the statement went on, it had preferred not to do so, in order for Britain to be given an opportunity for new arrangements to be properly discussed.

The statement declared that the position of NATO was that it had "provisional and limited permission, which should have led to some form of arrangements that were never concluded."

It was also noted in the statement that there was no treaty or agreement between Malta and the United States giving the American Sixth Fleet the right to take shelter in Maltese harbours and that visits by it were not in the interests of Malta.

Report of Security Council

On 20 December 1971, when it took note of the report of the Security Council to the General Assembly for the period from 16 June 1970 to 15 June 1971, the General Assembly asked the Secretary-General to suggest ways and means of enhancing the effectiveness of the Security Council in accordance with the principles and provisions of the Charter of the United Nations. In doing so, he was asked by the Assembly to give due consideration to the views of interested Governments.

The Assembly took this decision in adopting resolution 2864(XXVI), by 76 votes to 10, with 24 abstentions, on a proposal of Belgium, Burundi and Tunisia. Tunisia suggested the addition of the request to the Secretary-General.
